The President and Mrs. Cleveland at Forestport.

A RECEPTION TO THE VILLAGERS.

Birs. Cleveland Plays on the Piano and Sings, Which Attracts a Crowd-Programme for Today's Excursion.

FOREST PORT, July 15 .- Notwithstanding the sun rose gloriously over the hills this morning, there were no signs of life at the residence of Dominie Cleveland, where the presidential party is stopping, until nearly nine o'clock. During last evening, Mrs. Cleveland played a number of selections on the piano and sang one of her favorite songs. The music, however, seemed to attract the villagers and as soon as the fact was discovered, she ceased. The curtains were not drawn and the party could be seen chatting together. Mrs. Cleveland, although still wearing a bandage over her eyes, seemed to enter into conversation with energy. Bouquets, presented to her at Clinton, were displayed about the parlors.

The president did not rise to breakfast with the remainder of the family, but remained in bed till noon. He is suffering from fatigue and a slight attack of cholera morbus. Dr. A. G. Brower called during the morning and gave him a little medicine.

Railroad Commissioner Kernan also made the president a brief call. Mrs. Cleveland's eye pains her still, and altogether the party is sadly in need of the rest they are now enjoying. The president has decided not to alter the arrangements made for the excursion tomorrow.

agent of one of the hotels on the St. The agent of one of the hotels on the St. Lawrence river arrived here this morning for the purpose of endeavoring to induce the president to hold an informal reception at a hotel designated by him during the afternoon tomorrow. The citizens of Watertown, too, are very desirous of entertaining the presidential party for a short time tomorrow morning. A special train conveying the president and Mrs. Cleveland will reach there at 10:30 a. m., and will be met by General Manager Britton, of the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad, accompanied by a number of Mrs. Cleveland's Oswego friends. The train is scheduled to reach Cape Vincent at 11 o'clock and the party will embark at once on the steamer St. Lawrence for a day's ride among the islands. This afternoon Railroad Commissioner John D. Kernan will take the president and Mrs. Cleveland and the Rev. Mr. Cleveland and wife for a short drive, stopping at Spring Bank, his pleasant summer cottage, half a mile from his pleasant summer cottage, har a mile from the village. On their return, tea will be served there and the party will reach here in time for the reception, which begins at 7:30 o'clock. The supper will be entirely informal and no one will be present except the driving party and members of Mr Kernan's family. The president did not leave his room till and no one will be present except the driving party and members of Mr Kernan's family.

The president did not leave his room till nearly noon. It was learned that tomorrow's jaunt will partake of the nature of a family reunion. Family affection among the Clevelands is very marked, and the trip to Forest-port was made with this meeting in view. Besides the president and his wife and Rev. and Mrs. W. Cleveland, the party will consist of Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, of Hol. land Patent, and Mrs. Yeomans, of Wayne county, his sisters; his nieces, Miss Harriet Hastings, of Clinton; and Miss Carrie Hastings, of Smiths college, Mass.; Secretary Fair-child and wife and Oswego friends.

The president will not depart from his original arrangements to spend the day on the steemer among Thousand Islands. The train will leave Alder Creek about 9:30 a. m., and return about the same hour in the evening. The president went to his room again in the aftenoon and remained there until nearly 7 o'clock, when he began to prepare for the reception. It was a great night for the hamlet of Forestport. The people drove in from all sections and in all kinds of convexances.

Scotchmen Claim That They Were Swindled in a Trade.

Chicago, July 15.—Suit for $800,000 was begun in the United States court this morning by the Swan land and cotton company, limited, of Edinburg, through their solicitors, against Alexander H. Swan and Thomas Swan, of Cheyenne, and others. In 1883 Swan and Frank, the Live Stock company, National company, and the Frank Anthony Cattle company, composed of the above named parties, were grazing cattle over ranges in Wyoming territor. These corporations joined with James Wilson, of Edinburg, and sold out for $2,553,825 to the Swan Land and Cattle company, which Wilson had worked up among Scotch capitalists, among them being Lord Douglas Gordon and Colin J. McKinzie. The complainants allege that the purchasers relied upon the false representation of Alex H. Swan upon untried inventory of cattle and upon the reports of one Thomas Lawson, an agent in the pay of the selling companies. The complainants say that instead of 83,167 head of cattle, as represented that were no more than 60,000, and that in many other respects were the inventories. many other respects were the inventorie which were shown them, untrue. In makin which were shown them, untrue. In making the sale the complainants say that Swan represented that the number of celves from herds would equal 22,628, while in fact there were only 1,600. ANOTHER HORROR.

Review of Business for the Past Week-Failures, Etc.

New York, July 15.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s New York, July 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Exports of breadstuffs, cotton, animals and animal products and petroleum, in June, were $2,668,-277, against $83,683, 224 for the same month last year. Breadstuffs increased $3,300,000 and cattle $2,710,000. Cotton increased $9,100,000, provisions $100,000 and oil $314,000. With other exports as last year, the aggregate for June would be $50,000,000 against $50,000,000 imports, making an excess of imports for the three months of $50,000,000. Cotton accounts for $25,000,000 of this loss, and recent failures indicate that this specelation was not wider than the one in wheat. The unloading of those who bought wheat after Kershaw's failure had depressed No. 2 red here at $24, a fall of over 4 cents for the week and 244 cents for the week and 244 cents $4,000,000, "visible supply," $0,000,000 bushels in California and certainly 10,000,000 in farmers' hands, besides all the flour on hand—facts which establish the cerrectness of the estimates made months ago that the surplus would exceed 50,000,000 bushels.

In spite of railroad earnings, which gained fifteen per cent in June, and the encouraging assurances by prominent men and continued proof that the interstate act is not to be so corstrued by courts as to do all the harm apprehended, the prices of stocks have been lower. The market depends not upon values or earnings, but upon individual notions as to the question whether the famous Ives' dealing is merely undealt or a misdeal. It is a case of a long row of bricks on end. If one banker calls and topple over all along the line. ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 15 .- A terrible accident occurred at the crossing of the Grand Trunk railway and the Michigan Central rail-way, in this city, about seven o'clock this evening. An excursion train on the Grand Trunk from Port Stanley, ran into a passing freight train on the Michigan Central road with a number of cars loaded with oil attached. The engine crashed into one of these cars, when the oil instantly took fire and burned fiercely, communicating to the cars on both trains and extending to Griffin's warehouse, coal and lime heds adjoining the track on the west and to John Campbell's dwelling on the east, all of which were burned to the ground with contents.

The treasury has neither drawn from nor added to the supply of currency during the week, and silver receipts at New York continue only 12 per cent of the total. The firm's relatives would put up 15 per cent and enable the payment of 25 cents in settlement. A large number of creditors have already signified their willingness to accept the 25 cents offered, but stock houses, to the number of six or seven, refused, as they had already secured enough property of Rosenfeld's, in the shape of the New York stock exchange membership and other security to net them 25 per cent of their claims, which amounted to about $100,600. THE MERRIMAC'S MISHAP.

Arrival of Passengers of the Unfortunate Vessel-Story of the Disaster.

Boston, July 15.—The steamer Carrol arrived to-day from Halifax, having on board twenty-nine passengers of the steamer Merrimac. The passengers appeared to be in good health and looked none the worse for the mishap. They say they saw no organized attempt of robbery by the crew or any marked degree of drunkenness, as has been charged, although a few pieces of baggage were broken open and rified, and some of the crew were under the influence of liquor. But in general terms they speak highly of the efforts of the officers and men to get them ashore and prevent loss of life and property.

HALIFAX, July 15.—The tug A. C. Whitney, which arrived this morning from Liverpool, N. S., brought the remaining passengers and crew of the wrecked steamer Merrimac. Captain Crowell is at Liverpool. He has made the following statement:

"The Merrimac ran ashore in a dense fog which settled down between a half and three-quarters of an hour before she struck. Fog whistless had been regularly sounded during that time. The ship was in charge of Pilot Reynolds, a native of Point Latour, who has been piloting teamers on this coast for the last twenty years.

This was his first accident. When the fog set in the pilot, first officer and I were in the wheel-house, and while the men were there the ship struck. Quartermaster Morrison was at the wheel. When the fog set in the course was changed by the pilot's order, half a point off the shore as a precaution. During all our trips last year our course in that vicinity was southwest by west, which carried us off to the southward, and steering half a point south of this southwest by west, which carried us off to the southward, and steering half a point south of this was a precautionary measure, adopted on account of fog. When the ship struck, and for ten minutes thereafter, the fog was so thick that the light on the island could not be seen. It then lifted, and we saw light and knew we were on Little Hope island. The first indication we had of being near danger was the vessel striking rocks. She kept affoat for a half or two-thirds her length for a time, and then settled on the rocks, listing some to port. The ship was making nine knots when she struck. In my opinion we were carried out of our course further than we were aware of, by the current setting in westerly, towards land."

ANXIOUS TO RETURN. Colored People Who Went to Liberia in Destitute Condition.

Columbia, S. C., July 15.—[Special.]—Letters are frequently received here from many of the colored people who emigrated from this state to Liberia, several years ago, in which woeful tales are told of their condition in that country. A few days ago a colored tenant on John D. Taylor's plantation, in Lancaster county, received a letter from one of his kinsmen, an intelligent negro who went to Liberia, on the "Azor," in which he pleads most eloquently for means to return to South Carolina. quently for means to return to South Carolina. He says that he and his companions will enter into a solemn obligation to work the balance of their days for any persons who will pay their passage back to this country. He represents himself, and others who went with him from Lancaster county, as being in a most pitiable condition, bordering on starvation. He says they have not so much as seen a piece of meat in twelve months, and as for bread they hardly get enough to keep body and soul together. There is some talk of raising a fund, by popular subscription, to enable these unfortunate people to return to their former homes.

SAVANY 'M, Ga., July 15.—[Special.]—
Among the passengers on the Central "Shoo Fly" train this morning was a lady who came to the city to hunt a runaway sister. She refused to disclose her name. She called at several houses, but obtained no clew to her sister. The proprietor of one place said that she had seen the girl in Augusta, and thought that her name was Marion Spangle. It was learned that there is a third sister in Montgomery, Ala., making a search with an officer. It is thought that the lady who is here is from Augusta. About ten days ago a girl was induced by a man named Captain Marshall to leave her home in that city. Atlanta, Athens and neighboring towns were searched by one of the sisters, but no clews were obtained. This is probably the same party, but it is not thought that the runaway is here.

The resolutions ask for a more complete divorcement of school offices and politics, an extension of the school year and an increase of teachers' wages in rural districts; the adoption of some plan whereby meritorious teachers, after long service, may be honorably retired; the passage of laws necessary to secure the at-tendance at public schools of all persons of school age who are deficient in the rudiments of an English education; the increase of public libraries and the establishment of closer rela-tions between them and schools; the fostering of the kindergarten and appliances of its spirit and methods into lower primary grades; the recognition of the value of industrial art; more earnest attention not only to instruction in fundamenful training of pupils in moral character, in-special preparation for the duties of citizen-ship; value of musical instruction. They also specially commend to congress a national bureau of education as an agency of increasing value and worthy of more liberal support, and reaffirm the convention's conviction of the urgent necessity of temporary federal aid in education of the illiterate masses of

We express our profound interest in the education of the Indians, heartily commend the spirit of liberality shown by congress in the matter, and call special attention to the important and encouraging results already achieved.

We recommend to the several state legislatures the adoption of laws—first, requiring instruction to be given in all public schools in physiology and hygiene, with special reference to the injurious; effects upon the human system of alcohol and narcotics; second, laws suppressing the publication and sale of inpure literature; third, laws forbidding the sale of tobacco to youths.

About Georgia's Legislative Halls-Pen

Mr. Felton, of Bibb, is a man of fine presence, and his speech yesterday in the house in support of the motion to re-commit the Marietta and North Georgia bill had the ring of the true metal. He makes a decided impression on the house.

The young members of the house are begin-ning to assert themselves. The speeches of Messrs, Glenn, Howell, and Felton of Bibb, yesterday, were ringing ones.

Mr. Simmons's speech in favor of Mr. Brady's bill is warmly complimented on all sides for its force and ability. He is a strong, clear and impressive speaker, and presents his argument in an incisive manner. He has championed the bill from the start, and added greatly to its popularity by his management. It is said that his earnest defense of the farmers of his section will ensue his nomination for congress, in the third district, at an early day. Mr. Simmons is one of the acknowledged leaders of the house.

Senator R. H. Powell, of the Barnesville Senator R. H. Powell, of the Barnesville district, who resides at Barnesville, is among the very best legislators in the senate. He is an intellectual looking man, low in stature with piercing black eyes and hair tinged with gray. He is a valuable member of several of the most important of the senate committees, and no member of that body stands higher in the esteem of the senators. He is one of the leading senators, and is an honor to his constituency whom he represents most faithfully and ably.

Senator Robert H. Jackson, of the 37th senatorial district, is a native of Greene county, and is one of the most practical, energetic and working members of Georgia's senate. He is devoted to the educational interests of the people of the state, and is actively engaged in his work as a member of the educational committee of the senate. He has just returned from the State university at Athensand speaks most enthusiastically of this grand institution—the pride of the people of Georgia. Senator Jackson is well posted on all matters of public concern, and his friends think higher legislative honors await him in the near future.

A Strange Case of the Resuscitation of a Lady

AT THE DOOR OF THE CREMATORY,

Where all Arrangements Had Been Made Reducing Her Body to Ashes-An Awful Thought.

NEW YORK, July 15 .- A living woman for whom the crematory furnace was at its fier-pest heat of twenty-seven hundred degrees, renheit, and for whom the alum sheet was idy prepared, is with her husband and fren, although on Thursday last she lay in her coffin in a room adjoining the vault where eration is done. It was a case most hor rible to think of or contemplate, and will make evident the need of still more stringent laws to govern this new feature in san welfare. Ex-Coroner Hughes is president of the Mount Olive Crematory association, which, in the form of a Grecian temple, is lo cated in a lovely garden spot at Fresh Pond, Long Island. Dr. Hughes vouches for the cor-rectness of the story, but withholds the name of the physician who made out and signed the death certificate and that of the lady. In the former case he gave his promise only after the most urgent appeals, and then he only consented to keep the story until the annual report is published in October, when his obligations as president of the crematory makes it necessary for him to print the facts, and even then, out of motives of consideration that prevail in every man's breast, he will suppress the name of the unfortunate, yet at the time happy, family that had

THE DEAD RESTORED TO LIFE. On the day mentioned a casket containing the body of a woman arrived at the crematory. It came from Fifth avenue, not far from the Hotel Windsor. Accompanying it was the widower, children and a half dozen relatives. widower, children and a half dozen relatives. The casket was carried into the reception room, and by its side was placed a costly silver urn, in which the ashes were to be subsequently placed for final keeping. After a simple service the lid of the coffin was removed and the mourners, one by one, took a last tearful look. The lid was replaced and the foral emblems were again placed on the coffin.

The widower and weeping children were led away to the carriages, and the dead was left to the crematory assistants for incineration. When they were gone President Hughes and his men removed the entire lid and then sent them to prepare the alum sheet for enveloping

THE GLOWING FURNACE DOORS.

While they were absent President Hughes turned to a small mirror, and while arranging his tie he was startled by a faint voice at his back, saying, "Where am I?"

Turning quickly the saw the woman sitting bolt upright in her casket, staring directly at him. When he gathered his scattered wits he realized that proprint ection, was needed and realized that prompt action was needed, and stepping to her side he said familiarly: "You are with friends." She had already swung her legs out of the casket, and was looking in a dazed way at the urn and then at her burial Assisting her out of the coffin and enher out of the command en-circling her with one arm, he carefully kept her head turned from her resting place, and half led, half carried her to a cheerful bed room overhead, occupied by the superintend-ent and his wife. Soft breezes were coming in the window, and a cheery canary in an alcove sang a song of joy. While the superinten-dent's wife removed the

and milk. The drink had the effect of bringing a flush to the cheeks of the patient, su ceeded immediately by a quiet doze. The teling a flush to the cheeks of the patient, succeeded immediately by a quiet doze. The telegraph was brought into requisition, and the husband was soon back at the crematory with a set of his wife's apparel. While he was yet on the way his wife awakened 'from her nap and asked: "Whose clothes am I wearing?" and asked: "Whose clothes am I wearing?" They were those of the crematory, but that fact was ingeniously concealed in the reply, which seemed to satisfy her. The severest task was when the husband arrived, when they tried to school him into self-control for the interview. The course of procedure agreed upon was carried out to the letter. The husband went into the room with the usual inquiry as to how she felt, and said if she considered herself strong enough they would return to the city; that in his opinion she had stayed long enough in the country; acquiescing in everything, although somewhat mystified, she arose, dressed herself, and announced that she was ready. The husband was now in a tortured frame of mind, for he

DREADED PASSING THE FRONT DOOR, where in large etters was the word "Crema-tory." The shock of the discovery he feared would kill his wife. Happily there was a rear door, and through this he led her to a close carriage, and thence, regardless of the fact there was no road, he had the carriage driven traight across the lawn and field until kindly trees hid the crematory from sight. Then he sook the smooth pike to the nearest railroad station and a train thence home. The children had been forewarned of what had occurred, but as an additional precention

Heroes and Heroines.

There are few who endure bodily troubles without complaint. Did you ever meet among the heroes or heroines of your acquaintance—if any such there have been—one with a yellowish cast of countenance and that jaun-niced aspect generally, which the most unpracticed eye recognizes as the product of a disordered liver, whe did not complain, and peevishly too, of the soreness of the recalcitrant organ, of pains beneath the right shoulder blade, of dyspeptic symptoms, constipation and headache? Of course you never did, and of course the individual was not using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, or he would not so have looked—so have complained. To purify the blood when contaminated with bite, and conduct the secretion into its proper channel, the blood when contaminated with bile, and conduct the secretion into its proper channel, to re-establish regularity of the bowels, banish billious headache and remove impediments to complete digestion, nothing can approach in officacy this peerless alterative and tonic. Malarial complaints, always involving the liver and kidney and bladder inactivity are remedied by it. It is a capital appetizer,

Rev. G. H. Cartledge, in Franklin Register.

Thomas Peter Carnes, for whom the village of Carnesville was named, and upon whose land the county site was located, was perhaps the most noted man among the early settlers of the county. As judge of the superior court, member of congress and one of the first board of trustees of the State university at Athens, he stood high in the estimation of his fellow-citizens. He was one of the commissioners appointed by the legislature of the state in 1877 to confer with a similar commission appointed by the legislature of South Carolina to review and determine whether the Seneca or the Tugaloo was the main branch of the Savannah river, and the true dividing line between the states. Death of Colonel Thurmond.

ATHENS, Ga., July 15.—[Special.]—The many friends of Colonel S. P. Thurmond were shocked this afternoon to hear of his sad death which occurred at his residence in Cobbham. Colonel Thurmond has for some time been a sufferer from bright's disease of the kidneys, and while he had been in feeble health for several months, lately he had seemed much better, and yesterday took a short walk and conversed freely with one of his neighbors on business. Colonel Thurmond has for many years been a prominent member of the Athens bar, and just before he retired from business had one of the largest practices in this part of the state. He leaves a wife and three daughters to mourn his sad death. The funeral will take place tomorrow morning from the First Methodist church of which he had been seen. The Plastering Fell.

Madison, Ga., July 15.—[Special.]—Miss Mary Barksdale, of Milledgeville, one of Madison's many fair visitors, happened to a very nearly serious accident night before last. She and Mrs. Myrack are spending a week with Mrs. R. S. Douglass. About twelve o'clock Tuesday night the plastering in their bedroom fell with a terrific crash. Their terrific soreams brought Mr. Douglass in with a bound, and the ladies were extricated to find they had sustained some bruises. Miss Barksdale's face was considerably battered, but not serious,

The Election Postponed.

Maddison, Ga., July 15.—[Special,]—At a recent meeting of the city council it was decided to put off calling an election on free schools. It is to be regretted our people are so indifferent, and the lukewarm manner in which the council handles the matter is greatly to be deplored. MR. SLATON'S MISTAKE. The Closing Exercises of Guinn & O'Kelly's CONYERS, Ga., July 15.—[Special.]—The closing exercises of the Guinn & O'Kelly male and female academy passed off this morning, with great satisfaction to patrons and great credit to teachers and pupils. The walls of the grand arena where Mesers. Gordon and Bacon closed their joint debate in the gubernatorial campaign, were tastefully decorated with pictures, flowers and evergreens. Professor Guinn has taught nearly all the business men of this place. With wonderful success he has wielded the taws here for about thirty years, and yet his eye is not dim nor his

JUSTICE IN WILKINSON.

The Adjourned Term of Court Does Good Work.

IBWINTON, Ga., July 15.—[Special.]—The adjourned term of Wilkinson superior court has just closed. Judge Jenkins has made a fine impression upon the law labiding citizens of our county, and you may hear it from all sections that he is the right man in the right place. The criminal docket alone was called and the following convictions made:

E. W. Swith, violating the prediction law. E. W. Smith, violating the prohibition law, a fine of $500.

W. B. Freeman plead guilty to the same charge and was fined $200.

Daniel Cumming, carrying whisky to church, a fine of $100. John Benford, carrying concealed weapons, Adam is also building himself a commodious residence on Railroad street, and many other improvements are going on in different parts of the town.

Tribute to a Lead Pencil.

Sandersville, Ga., July 15.—[Special.]—
In an aged and interesting volume of the Methodist church discipline, published in 1836, eight years previous to the memorable split in the conference in 1844, and which has been recently brought to light by a lady in this city, bears the following: "John H. Perry's book, price 374 cents, this June the 12th, 1839." The remarkable feature about this entrance is, that, although made with lead pencil nearly half a century ago, its still remains as clear and legible as if written yesterday.

Hives, pimples, boils, and other blood affections show themselves at this season. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures all such troubles by its powerful action upon the blood. Sold by all druggists.

Dumb-bells and horizontal bars, Indian clubs and the trapeze are valuable under certain conditions, but they are detrimental rather than beneficial if the blood is poor and thin and poisoned with bile. Use of the muscles necessitates waste as well as induces growth. If the blood does not carry sufficient nutritive material to repair the waste, loss of strength necessarily follows, and growth is out of the question. Purify and enrich your blood with Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and then exercise will develop and not consume your physique.

It has been suggested that as President Cleveland will be in Atlanta on the 15th, 16th and 17th of October that he could go over to Montgomery and spend two or three days a the state fair of Alabama then being held, returning to Washington by way of Macon, reaching here on Monday, the 24th, the openday of the state fair. Congressman Blount said to your correspondent today that the president had told while in Washington a few weeks since em phatically that he would visit Atlanta on or about October 15th, and that he felt sure that if the proper means were used he thought the president could be induced to visit Macon also. It would be exceedingly gratifying to the large number of people who would be visiting th state fair at that time to have an opportunity of seeing the president.

Macon, Ga., July 15.—[Special.]—As one of Messrs A. Reynolds & Sons' plumbers was engaged in laying the gas pipes in the new freight depot of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, at the foot of Third street this morning, his attention was called to the new blasting, just across the platform, by men blasting, just across the platform, by Superintendent Edwin Edge, who told him to look out, as he might get killed, being so close. Mr. Edge had hardly gone ten feet, when a cartridge exploded and a large piece of stone, weighing three or four hundred pounds, hit the side of the building and a large door, which had not been hung. The door was which had not been hung. The door was twelve feet high, eight feet wide and three inches thick, weighing about four hundred pounds, and which fell with full force on the young man.

Dr. Johnson was called and on examination found he had been injured internally. It is hoped, however, that he will be all right in a few days.

JACOB RUSSELL'S DEATH.

Macon, Ga., July 15.—(Special.)—Last night Jacob Russell breathed his last, after a long and lingering illness. Mr. Russell was seventy-four years old. He came to Macon in 1837, and began life in good earnest. He was an officer on the old steamboat Goddard in the old steamboat days. When the State road was begun Mr. Russell took the first section on it, and he it was who builtjand named "Big Shanty," a few miles out from Atlanta. His wife was a Follindore. When she came to Macon she was brought on the river boat from Darien. The family has lived here ever since, and Mr. Russell could tell as many stories of the early history of the city as anybody.

On June 21st, last, he had a wine dinner, and invited some of his old friends to enjoy the semi-centennial celebration of his arrival in America. He was a member of Germania Lodge of Odd Fellows, and they will be present in a body at his funeral.

HAMILTON, Ga., July 14.—[Special Correspondence Constitution.]—On the 4th of June last there appeared from Americus a special to THE CONSTITUTION, in which it was stated that Mr. M. K. McClung, a young man of that city, had died of congestion of the brain produced by drinking too much whisky I was at that time THE CONSTITUTION'S correspondent at Americus, and am the author of the article. I gathered the details of his death from what I deemed a reliable source and as a press correspondent, details of his death from what I deemed a reliable source and as a press correspondent, with no other object than that of giving the news, I wired it to THE CONSTITUTION. Afterwards I made a slight correction, as I found that I had been misinformed as to his disappointment in love. The above statement is considered necessary in order to show that I could have had no interest in the case except as a news gatherer. I am always glad to make any corrections in statements made by me when it can be shown that such statements are incorrect. For this reason I was glad to have received a communication yesterday from Mr.

deceased young man, stating that on investigation he has found the runors of his son's dissipations without foundation. Mr. McClung says:

"I never saw my son in the least under the influence of ardent spirits in my life. He has been a daily inmate of my family during his life until the first of this year, since which he has visited us at least every fortnight. On reading the article I went immediately to Montezuma and thoroughly investigated the said charge of a "big drunk on the occasion of the firemen's tournament." My son's friends and associates, comprising she best people of the place, emphatically deny the charge. They were with him from the time of his arrival until his return the next day on the 12 m. train for home. * * Dr. Ergram, one of the best physicians of the state, who has been my son's and my family's physician for ten or twelve years, and who is foreman of the Flint fire company, says that he was with my son during his entire visit here, and that there is no truth of the big drunk, and measure and the propounds. was with my son during his entire visit here, and that there is no truth of the big drunk, and moreover, says that from his knowledge of his physical condition he is satisfied the real cause of his death was heart disease and not drunkenness. He had several attacks of heart disease during Dr. Engram's practice, and could the doctor have been with him in his last attack he might have been in life to-day."

If any misstatements occurred in the special they were made from misinformation. I knew nothing of the case, and could have had no interest in it. T. J. Brooks, Jr.

MEETINGS IN COLUMBUS. Organization of the Columbus Southern Railroad Company.

Columbus, Ga., July 15.—[Special.]—The stockholders of the Columbus Southern railroad held their first meeting in this city today. The meeting was largely attended, representa-tives from all the counties along the proposed line of road being present. It was presided over by Mayor C. B. Mr. W. E. Lundy, agent for Indias C. Williams & Co., Richmond, Va., was in the city yesterday.

He was interviewed yesterday by a Construction reporter concerning his "Hygela tobacco," a new and valuable brand of tobacco that is creeing no little excitement in tobacco circles. Speaking of the tobacco, Mr. Lundy gave the following statement: "The manufacturers having been besought by the cousumers of tobacco, in the malarial districts, who could not use it as usually manufactured without unpleasant sensations, such as nervousness, heartburn, indigestion, etc., we employed a distinguished chemist to prepare for us a formula to be used in the preparation of tobacco that all could chew without these unpleasant effects, and, if possible, also, that would counteract the effects of the climate. moderation. The equities of the case, as we have striven to show, relate to both sides. The state has rights and the lessees have rights. The legislature must see to it, that the rights of each are secured. The Albany News and Advertiser touches the core of the question, in our opinion. It says that: "While it is nothing but right that the lessees should be paid for all betterments in the way of rolling stock on the State road, the state ought not to have to pay for the road again in order to get it."

This is a common sense view of the situ ation and it includes, also, the law and equities of the case. The legislature is powerful enough to discuss the whole question without a display of irritation and passion. There is no need for men who have pluck enough to stand by their convictions to make exhibitions of themselves. There is less emphasis in passion, or a display of passion, than there is in the cool and quiet Semness which feels that it is sustained by reason and justice.

One or two of our contemporaries, misled and misinformed, have manifested a desire to jump, grasshopper-like, into the courts, with this whole question on their inflamed backs. As we have endeavored to point out, such a course would not only defer a settlement of the question, but would crip-

As we have said before, a proper settlement of the question which Senator Brown has raised in his letter, lies with the legislature. The legislature and the governor can deal with the whole matter, and there is no reason why it should not be left to them. THE CONSTITUTION believes that the legislature is amply able to take care of the best interests of the state, and that it will proceed to do so, we have no reason to doubt

Flurried by a Flag.

Our mail advices report a sensational occurrence at Portland, Oregon, on the Fourth of July. Perhaps the story is best told in the following paragraph from the Oregon-

Yesterday morning a report came to the Grand Army of the Republic in the line of march, that a rebel flag was flying from the residence of George S. H. Jackson, on Carnthers street, between Third and Fourth streets. The report, though not credited, seemed to be on good authority, so after the parade a committee from the Grand Army of the Republic the house. They found a r erate flag displayed from a window, and requested Mrs. Jackson to remove it. She said that her first husband had fought and died under that flag, and the thought it proper to display it on the occasion of the anniversary of the nation's birth. The re-quest was renewed, and was again unheeded. The committee remarked that they would take it upon themselves to remove it. Then Jackson appeared on the scene and informed the committee that if they attempted to it would be at the risk of their lives, but before there was an opportunity for the committee to use force Mrs. Jackson went up stairs and took down the emblem of treason.

It was not & the best taste for Mrs. Jack son to bring out her little confederate flag on the Fourth, but she violated no law. In this land of liberty a lady may decorate her own house with any piece of bunting that strikes her fancy, and the grand army man, or any other man, who would invade her premises to take it down would deserve the treatment usually visited upon ruffianly

The Portlanders know very weil that a confederate flag no longer represents anything. It is not an emblem of treason, and It is no longer a standard of revolt: The spasms caused by its occasional exhibition are as silly as they are malicious. The grand army men who indulge in such foolishness are not helping their country, their party or their organization. They are simply showing themselves up as a set of stupid, brutal dolts.

For once the democrats of Ohio are sensible. They are unanimously in favor of Judge Thurman for governor if he will ac-

Rabbi Browne's Woes.

Many readers of THE CONSTITUTION remember Rabbi E. B. M. Browne, who was in charge of the Atlanta synagogue several years ago. Few people who ever knew the learned rabbi will forget him. He possesses a marked individuality and a capacity for making himself conspicuous wherever be goes. Perhaps his most striking characteristic is his genius for getting into trouble He appears to engender discord and dissension wherever he goes.

Before he came to Atlanta the rabbi had been through more than one scene of strife. In this city he soon became well known for his bold originality and his fine oratory. He is a man of rare gifts and attainments He is an unusually attractive speaker, and cometimes rises to real eloquence.

Rabbi Browne did not wear well in Atlanta. His local fame flared up suddenly, and as suddenly sank. It soon became evident that he had had his day here. When he left he struck for a larger constituency, and found it in New York. He was called to on, of the wealthiest synagogues in that ity, and almost immediately gained recog-pition as one of the strongest preachers in the metropolis. He attracted great congregations. His sermons were frequently printed in full in the city papers. His opinions were sought on various questions,

INCREDIBLE AS THE statement may appear it is nevertheless true that Secretary Endicott has discharged a republican clerk. THE RUMOR that Etelka Gerster was insane turns out to be a cruel misstatement. Her voice is failing, but her mind is as sound as IT IS SOMETIMES considered stupid to speak of the weather. Just at this time it is cruel and absolutely unpardonable. No one has a right to remind another of his misery. IF THE ANTI-PROHIBITIONIST ORATORS in Texas continue to adopt the rifle as their argument, as one of them did the other day in a joint discussion, the state will go dry by a rousing majority. A HOPE of a split in the tory party is based on the fact that the queen wants parliament to pay a million dollar bill for the expenses of her jubilee celebration. The queen is amply able to pay all her own bills, but the more e gets the better she loves it. BILLY WEST, the minstrel who took Fay Templeton for his first wife, and was divorced from her, is about to marry again. His pros-pective wife is Miss Rumelia Morris, daughter of Mr. Edward Jay Morris, who was once our minister to Turkey. She is said to be a very

to find some place in New York where Rabbi Browne can preach, and they say accomplished young lady. HIRING DRESS SUITS to gentlemen has long been an extensive business in all big cities of civilized world, but New York has give him very little concern, especially since branched out into a new enterprise. Entire wedding trousseaus from veil to stockings can the wealthy Herrman Brothers have sworn now be hired by ladies in that gay city. It costs from $7 to $40 to obtain a full outfit of these borrowed feathers. Ir is believed on good evidence that Levi Bacon, the defaulting financial clerk of the would give our esteemed contemporary quite interior department, who recently died, stole the $15,000 of his shortage to help out the republican campaign committee in the national contests of 1876 and 1880. This was one of the fruits of the blackmailing circulars of Jay Hubbell and his gang. POSTAGE STAMPS were introduced in 1847, before which time all letters were paid for in cash, either at the office of mailing or that of delivery. One hundred and sixty softs of stamps have been issued since 1847. In 1798 the whole postal department at Washington was conducted by the postmaster-general and assistant and one clerk.

A VALUABLE ADDITION to the literature of the day has been made in the exquisite poem by E. P. Miller, of Washington, D. C., entitled "Ringwood Manse." The story is a pastoral of life in the old Virginia homestead, and is told in beautiful measure and well rounded The work is tastily bound and should find a place in the libraries of all lovers of poetry.

GENERAL BOYNTON, who writes all sorts of stuff from Washington to the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette, has discovered that the real purpose of President Cleveland's St. Louis letvas to create a split in the Grand Army, and to induce the democratic vet cans to retire from that organization. The democratic members of the G. A. R. seem disposed to retire without any instigation.

INGENIOUS CALCULATIONS ARE made to show that the United States could build the Nicarcanal for $100,000,000. The amount could be borrowed easily at three per cent, and the great enterprise would involve an interest charge of only $3,000,000 a year. The United States will be slow to go into the canal basiness, especially in view of the dismal experience of France with the big Panama ditch.

SCARED BY A BLACK SPOOK. The Uncanny Companion of a Minister's Graveyard Walk.

From the Circinnati Enquirer.

A Methodist minister, lately a resident of Hamilton county, Ohio, who has been visiting friends in our city, relates the following thrilling episode in his life, which occurred while he was stopping in Van Wert, Ohio:

"It was on a beautiful moonlight evening in June and the atmosphere was just about as sultry as it has been at any time during the present summer. I was enjoying myself in the company of some rela-tives who lived about three miles from Van Wert, on the old Wiltshire road. At a late hour I arose to go, but my friends insisted that I should remain for the but my friends insisted that I should be very lonesome. It was suggested that some ghost might appear to me at the cemetery or some individual might rob me. This was a beautiful country burying ground and was situated about midway on my route. I was quite amused at their artful method of persuasion and laughed vociferously. It was very ridiculous to me indeed that there should be a rattling of dry bones or the apparition of a spirit in a modern cemetery.

The people of today had made too much advancement, as I thought, for such idle fancies as that.

"Thus I proceeded on my way with no thought of danger—indifferent to the warnings that had just been given me. As I drew near to the cemetery, however, and began to see the tall, white shafts of however, and began to see the tail, white shairs of marble looming up among the evergreens my imag-ination was tensioned to its utmost capacity, and, I confess, I was a fit subject for terror. It seemed as if all the spook stories to which I had listened ut my childhood chased each other in quick succesion through my brain, and the very chirrup of the erickets or the incessant song of the whippoorwill intensified the loneliness of this little nook of earth. The long line of dark trees that threw such strange shadows across the fields and the mellow ligh hat fell from the moon upon every grotesque stump or stately monument only served to intensify my

"I arrived at last at the corner of the cer and oh, horrors, right in the very center of the field of dead men's bones, and from the shadow of s broad new tombstone, I saw a tall, black crea ise and stand erect. The apparition seemed in the distance like a huge cadaver clothed in a robe of sackeloth. The dreary eyes were sunken deep in their sockets, and the few irregular snags that erved for teeth were pressed like fangs against the thin and wrinkled lips. The monster gazed a moments in all directions; then, with a steady, measured movement it made directly for me. I topped and gazed upon the creature, and started stopped and gazed upon the creater, and senses, back bewildered, but, at once regained my senses, I concluded to proceed, and, if possible, to put on the appearance of unconcern. As I proceeded the specier paoceeded also, and, as certainly as I live in the present moment, it seemed as if we would both meet on the same point in the road. After going a short distance I slackened my pace, in room in front of me it might desire, and in a few noments I congratulated myself on being about wenty feet in the rear.

"Contrary to my anticipations, there was no conversation opened between us, but in a strange. ghost-like manner, the long withered form mov ahead of me until it reached a little old, abandoned burying ground at the right of the road. This spot was far more desolate than the new cemetery, for it had become entirely neglected, and at that late our of the night appeared as an interminable thicket, so completely were the weeds, bushes, bri-ars and trees tangled and matted together. Into this uncanny-place my ghostly terrifier passed and disappeared. I have never understood the nature of this apparition up to the present time, and I am perfectly willing to give my name to any one who would be inclined to doubt the occurrence."

A Woman in the Case. From the Peoria Journal.

There is always a woman in the case. That Persian king who, whenever an accident or calamity befel one of his subjects always asked: "What vas her name?" was not far out of the way. He held that every trouble that comes to man comes from some one of the gentler sex. It seems that E.

Josie lives in a house claborately fitted up, and although she got but $900 a year she lived at a rate of about $9,000. She had a box in the safe deposit company. When the collapse came she carried off its contents. It is now believed that there was over $40,000 in the box, and she is to be arrested and overhauled. From Mr. Harper's standpoint he is a martyr and ought to be respected for his heroic effort to beat Chicago. It is said that a member of Queen Kapiolani's staff has taken a copy of "The Barkeeper's Guide" with him to Hawaii. This settles the fate of the island kingdom. The Sandwich Islanders have island kingdom: The sandwich Islanders have withstood the ravages of small pox, leprosy, and cheap Chinese labor. They have maintained a national existence, even after Prince Bill died of overmuch whisky, thus closing the royal line of the Kansekamehas. But when it comes to cocktails before breakfast, whisky sours in the middle of the day, and nighteaps innumerable and multitudinous, later on, the Hawaiian race is doomed. The testament broad in glass and with a cork in the bind. ment bound in glass and with a cork in the bindment bound in glass and with a cork in the binding was deadly enough, but "The Barkeeper's

Instead of being a rare affection, caneer is becoming decidedly common; and what is more startling is the fact that our physicians and surgeons have no better success in the treatment of the dread disease than their predecessors. About all they profess to be able to do is to give temporary relief, and to smooth the way to the inevitable end.

that cancers were produced by a specific poison which was located in the body of the sore. It is still held by many eminent pathologists that the poison is specific, but is generated or produced in the body affected. In other words, by the failure of some portion of the human machine to do its part in changing the character of or eliminating certain effete matter, a poison is developed in some one of the glands which, like the single germ of the yeast plant, grows more or less rapidly, according to the amount of vital force with which nature opposes it.

The question naturally arises: Why does the poison affect only one of the many glands of the body? If this poison were floating a und in he blood, as many suppose, it would naturally affect all the glands alike, as the blood passes through all of them

The newest theory of cancerous or malignant tu-mors is that they are caused by a degeneration of tissue, due to a lack of vital or nerve force. It is oneeded, of course, that in the withdrawal of vital orce from any part, whether it be soft tissue, cartilage or bone, it soon begins to degenerate and final ly becomes morbid. All malignant growths denote morbid condition, but all morbid conditions are not necessarily malignant.

Since the nerves control the distribution of the viial forces, if they do not ultimately distribute them, it is but fair to infer that anything that ob-structs the flow of the vital forces will tend to pro-duce a morbid condition which may eventually develop a malignant character. This character may years, said he never used tobaceo or intoxicants in any form, went to bed at sundown and rose at su which he attributed his great vitality.

Concluding the examination the chancellor said to the gentlemen of the bar, "You see how regular-

The next witness was also named Elm; and he; as well as the former, showed a remarkable degree of vitality and power of mind. He told with detail what he knew of the case at issue. The chancellor

A French Departure.

A new departure in educational matters in France has recently been made that is of general importance; is proclaims the fact that France has made as much progress in educational affairs as any of her contemporaries, notwithstanding wars and rumors of war have done much to retard her.

Mme. Duplessis Kergomard, inspectrice generale des Ecoles Maternelles, editor and contributor to L'Ami de l'Enfance, and author of many excellent works on education, has been elected, in the face of determined opposition, a member of the distinguished and homorable body of gentlemen known as the Conseil Supericur de l'Instruction Publique, which, in behalf of the government, deliberates on all educational affairs.

The more significant does this matter appear when we learn that Mme. Kergomard did not seek the office; indeed, when nominated by a large body of initiating gettiemen, she modestly declined to enter the conflict. When presented with the consideration that her services in such a body would be instrumental in accomplishing great good, she put aside all personal preferences, and, giving her consent, entered the contest with a place; and determination that won the admiration of her enemies as well as of her friends. Her career will be watched with unusual interest on both sides of the watch, for this is the first time in the history of education in Fannec that such honor has been conferred on a lady. Not withstanding the advisability of such a course has been clearly demonstrated in our own country by the successful manner in which the two ladies on the New Vork City school been have discharged their cell.

New York, July 15 .- A Honolulu special gives a report of an interview which the Herald correspondent had with King Kalakana. The king is reported as saying: "The history of the present trouble would be too long to enter into now. My position today is largely one of ignorance as to what is exactly going on. As I understand it, however, a new constitution is being drawn up by a committee of revision composed of my present ministry, the supreme court and a number of citizens. What the constitution contains I do not know, but ! am informed that it has provisions that will radically alter the political condition of affairs.

For instance, I am told that it will confer the franchise upon all residents, whether citizens or not, provided they are property hol-ders. Now, unless class legislation is prac-ticed that will extend the franchise to Chinese, Japanese and Portuguese, and cut off the voting power of some three or four thousand natives, whose present qualification is that of education, and under that there are between eleven and twelve thousand voters of whom not more than five or six hundred are white. Now, it is a serious question whether I have any right to sign a document working such injustice to my countrymen as this new con-stitution would do at the instigation of the meeting, more than three-fourths of whose members have no say in their country's af-

"Will you sign the document?" I asked. "I shall not," be replied, "unless advised to do so by my privy council, to whom I shall submit, unless I am compelled to do it instantly under duress. But no matter whether signed by duress or advice. I shall consider the doenment illegal. The only way the existing constitution can be changed is by the vote of the legislature at two successive sessions, and when the people attempt to change the constitution in any other way, they simply make me an un-willing party to an illegal act."

"What are the relations between yourself .n. your new ministry?" "I cannot tell," answered the king, spreading open his hands. "I have not seen them since they took the oath of office." "But that," I said, "is nearly a week ago. W' do you not summon them and ask to be informed as to the true condition of affairs? It is surely the duty of your ministry to keep you informed of all that is occurring.

"It is," said the king, firmly. "That will show me their hand, or at all events, they shall bear the responsibility of keeping me in ignorance as to what is going on. I'll do it.' And summoning Antoine Rose, his chamber-man, he gave orders for the immediate convening of his ministry. "Do you fear any personal violence?" was

"Yes," replied the king, nervously, wetting his lips, "but they have not got inside yet."
"Will you call upon the United States ship Adams for assistance?"
"Not exactly for assistance," answered Kal-

The Hawaiian monarchy, of which Kapiolani, who is visiting the United States, was queen, had been practically overthrown by a popular uprising of the people. The prime minister of the kingdom, who is an American named Gibson, was born and reared in Anderson county, S. C. We saw him while on a visit to the city of Anderson probably while on a visit to the city of Anderson probably fifteen or twenty years ago. He was a companied by his daughter, who was said to be a princess. Gibson was the Bismarck of the Sandwich Islands. This man-Walter Gibson, as he was known here—got his start by teaching on old field school in Hart county. He lived in a one-room cubin at the old "Burnt Store Forks" of the road on A. J. McMullan's place! While there he added to the comfort of his family by building a kitchen with a dirt floor. Afterwards by building a Ritchen with a dirthor. Afterward he sold goods, carrying only a very small stock: He was a man of education and refluement, with a gift of gab. He interested his neighbors with stories of his travelt and adventures; but they could not swallow all of his yarns. Little did his Hart county auditors think that their garrulous Muncharsen would over become prime minister, high executions or, et cetera, of the Hawaiian kingdom.

The Napoleonic Racket.

The public are getting weary of Learing and seeing that overworked title, "Napoleon," when applied to some dashing business man, as the at-lied forces of Europe once were of the man who made the word illustrious. The "Napoleons of Finance" are coming to be looked upon with suspi-cion. Ferdinand Ward was a Napoleon or finance, and he now sets type in Sing Sing. The vice-presi-dent of the late Fidelity was called a Napoleon, and the forbidding looking building on Sycamore street. the forbidding looking building on Sycamore sires in the rear of the courthouse is now his St. Hicknes. The bears of Wall street made a raid yesterday on a young financier who has been dubbed a Napoleou, and in consequence the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton stock went tumbling down with an impetut that was appalling. Let us have a change rung in the title. Suppose we talk for the time of the "Wellingtons" or the "Bluchers of Finance." The departure might inspire more confidence. MR. GLENN'S AMENIMENT.

Mr. Glenn offered this amendment to the first section of the act:

"Provided, That it shall be a sufficient reply upon the part of the holder of the note to show that the article sold actually contained the ingredients it was represented to possess."

In supporting his amendment, Mr. Glem said that he regarded it as the duty of representatives to arrive at the real subject matter in dispute. They should see that farmers were not imposed on by swindling guano companies.

not imposed on by swindling guano co and to see that contracts made by not imposed on by swindling guano companies and to see that contracts made by farmers with honest guano companies should be faithfully carried out.

Farmers enly desire what is fair, and want to get what they contract for. Guano dealers do not desire to impose upon farmers an article that is worthless. There are but two defends now open to the farmers, one is that the guano has not been analyzed, which is hard to prove, and the other to show that it does not centain the ingredients named. The proviso adopts the presumption of law that nature acts uniformly, and that the ingredients are not in the fertilizers if there is a failure of crops.

The bruden of the proof is then upon the holder of the note to show that the guano did contain the ingredients specified. If he shows that the farmer must pay for it.

The effect of this law would be to give greater confidence in our state inspection, and guano companies having a good article won high not feel alarmed. The question is simply this: Ought a man to be compelled to pay for what he didn't get? Ought a man not pay for what he didn't get? Ought a man not pay for what he did get?

THINKS THE PRESENT LAW UNJUST.

Mr. Smith, of Gwinnett, favored the bill because the law as it now stands is unjust, inequitable and oppressive to farmers. Guano, to his knowledge, had been sold in Gwinnett that had never been inspected.

"Could not payment for it be withheld under the law?" asked Mr. Gamble.

Mr. Calvin adverted to the fact that on the previous discussion he had showed, by facts and figures, that the cotton belt had been extended by the use of commercial fertilizers, northward and southward, until in 1880, of the 7,690,292 acres of cultivated land in the entire state, thirty-four per cent was given to cotton culture. He had shown that the yield of corn had been increased forty per cent by the use of guano. More remarkable results than these had been accomplished in the culture of wheat.

North Georgia is the natural wheat region Aorth Georgia is the hardral wheat region of the state, and yet commercial fertilizers had spread the wheat belt over the entire state. In 1879 north Georgia produced 8 bushels per acre, middle Georgia 4, east Georgia 4 and 5-10 scre, middle Georgia 4, east Georgia 4 and 5-10 busnels per acre. In 1880, north Georgia pro-duced 4 busnels, middle Georgia 9 and 5-10 bashels and eastern Georgia 8 busnels per acre. In 1882 north Georgia produced 9 busnels, middle Georgia 9 busnels and eastern Georgia middle Georgia 9 bushels and eastern Georgia 5 bushels per acre.

Mr. Calvin showed that the northwestern and Bine Ridge counties, which, without guano, were wholly unadapted to cotton culture, now produce six per cent, while the counties of the lime-sink region produced only seven per cent and a fraction of the entire cotton crop of the state.

Polk county, whose surface is hilly and mountainous, has, by the use of guano, become the banner county of the state for the largest yield per acre, making a half bale per acre. Walker county, with guano, produced 3-10 of a bale, while Worth county in southwest Georgia readvend a fraction over 2-10 of a bale per acre.

Yesterday's discussions in the house indicate that that body is getting down to business. The house galleries were filled with spectators yesterday, a burge proportion being ladies.

Hen. "Bill" Glenn says he had a lovely time at Athens, despite the fact that he met several "entire strangers."

Mr. Calvin's speech upon the Brady bill was a carefully prepared and will delivered effort, which was listened to with great interest.

It is said that one of the speakers yesterday, as soon as he finished his speech, sent out for three of Henry Durand's pies and despatched them at a single sitting. Who was it?

Some one has appropriated all the railroad passes Mr. Glenn offered this amendment to the first section of the act:

an old and wealthy friend and myself. To save our selves, in a measure, the usual tediousness of the journey we engaged in a social game of eards, and to highten the interest had staked some small 'sums of money. In drawing some small change from his pocket, my friend dropped a roll of green-backs into the aisle. A neatly dressed young man, on an opposite seat, picked it upand handed it to its owner with the remark:

"Rather a nice little wad to have out if the train obbers should happen around."

He had been a very sociable companion during the earlier part of the trip, and we had taken a liking to him. His only drawback seemed to be a want of knowledge concerning life in western Texas. "Yes," returned the old man; "but I hardly expectany more train robberies in Texas. Why, it's been eight months since we've had one. Well, if they do get this little pile I'm safe anyhow. I've got twenty-times that much more, and they wouldn't know where I had it. I'm just a little too cute for 'em. They never think of making a manual of his boots."

The young man smiled. During the remainder of the afternoon be stood on the gallery of the coach, "taking a good look at the country; it was so different from Missouri, where he came from." Suddenly about dark the train stopped, Some Prater Defeats His Competitors in the Walking Match.

THE GRADYS DEFEAT THE DECATURS.

Practice by the Atlanta Gun Club-A Good Score—Baseball Games Yesterday. Races at Chicago, Etc.

The walking match last night in the tent at the corner of Hunter and Thompson streets attracted several hundred spectators and it proved an exceedingly lively contest. It was announced on the bills that the match would begin at 8 o'clock, but it was ten minutes of 9 before the signal for a start was given.

9 before the signal for a start was given.

The conditions of the match were somewhat remarkable. Alf Prater, the champion, engaged to outwalk three expert pedestrians. His competitors were Henry Preston, Edgar Barnes and John Reeder, all young men. It was agreed that Prater should go into the ring with one at a time.

Preston was to run five miles, Barnes was to make five miles, and Reeder was to run the remaining distance.

At the end of thirty minutes Preston had made four miles and eight laps, and Prater had made four miles and thirteen laps. After this Prater made some sprightly spurts and these increased his lead. His young competitor strove earnestly to recover the lost laps, but was unable to do so.

At 9:30 o'clock, just forty minutes after the start, Preston came off the track, having accomplished his 5 miles and 6 laps.

At the end of the first hour the blackboard indicated the following: Preston and Barnes 7 miles and 16 laps; Prater 7 miles and 22

At 10:22 o'clock Barnes had made his 5 miles, and he left the track to make way for Reeder, who was to finish the race. At this point the board of Prater showed that he had made 10

Reeder, as soon as he had run around the track half a dozen times satisfied the crowd that he was much swifter of foot than either of his colleagues. He dashed around the sawdust ring with a freedom of motion and fleetness which elicited the wildest applause. All this time the "mountain wonder" was apparently doing his best. Whenever the band wond strike up the two runners would press this time the "mountain wonder" was apparently doing his best. Whenever the band would strike up the two runners would press onward with increment of speed, and their efforts to pass each other just before the goal was reached were spirited. At the end of two and a half hours the score stood: Preston, Barnes and Reeder, fifteen miles; Prater fifteen miles. After this there was a noticeably relaxation on the part of Prater and he seemed to be suffering with cramp in the legs. On the other, hand, Reeder appeared fresher than ever, and made lap after lap with astonishing celerity. He gained about seven laps over Prater and maintained his lead with an ease that caused a large majority of the crowd to feel sure of his winning the race. Prater looked discouraged as he failed time and again to recover the lost distance. He would run around the ring five or six times at his best speed, followed close at the heels by at his best speed, followed close at the heels by Reeder. After trying this plan for some minutes, Prater began walking. His opponent walked behind him. Then Prater would bound forward at a rapid gait and so would his decread a decreater. Somebody ran along-side of Reeder and whispered something in his ear. This "something" had a remarkable effect upon him, for immediately he quit the run and came to a quick walk.

Taking courage Prater struck a rapid gait, and his seed increased as he massed and re-defeating the visitors by a score of 21 to 2.

There is not much to say for the game, as it was too one-sided to be interesting.

The Gradys had no difficulty, in finding the ball, every member of the nine inaking at least one safe hit. Harper was the most successful. Out of four times at bat he made two three-base hits, one home run and got his base on ball once. The battery work of Harper and Key and the first base play of Hall were the features of the Gradys. Decatur got but one hit off Harper, the other one scored being a hit off Harper, the other one scored being a base on balls. Danigreen at short and A. Laird at first did the best wosk for the vis-planet. Let us make that statement subsuantially good.

We have informed the great public that this is, for its size, the richest and most industrious community on the planet. Let us make that statement substantially good.

The Piedmont fair will be a golden opportunity. People from all sections will congregate there, some to behold the mighty resources of the south; others to see the president and his lovely and well beloved wife. In such a throng and before such an audience Anniston must be arrayed as becomes her properly. It costs a comparatively small sum to make a creditable exhibit. It will be worth thousands—it may be worth millions—of dolthousands—it may be worth millions—of dol-lars to us. It would be almost criminal to neglect so splendid, so valuable, so exceptional a chance to "boom" Anniston and Jackson-ville and Calhoun county.

Sumter Wants to Come.

There is no county in the state which can, if it will, make a better exhibit of agricultural products than Sumter.

The County Agricultural society has undertaken to make such an exibit at the State-Fair in Macon, and we would suggest that if successful in their efforts it should also be exhibited at the Piedment Exposition in Atlanta.

A very little effort on the part of each individual would make a most successful exhibit. Let every person do something. If you are a farmer, contribute a bushel of your best corn, wheat, oats, rye, rice, a few stakes of cane, a gallon of syrup, a few pounds of sugar, a big stalk of cotton, some ground peas, chufas, gallon of syrup, a few pounds of sugar, a big stalk of cotton, some ground peas, chufas, cow peas; fruit, hay potatoes, nuts, hogs, cows, sheep, goats, horses, mules.

If you are a mechanic, contribute some article of your handwork. If a hourswife, some article of canned or dried fruit, preserves, needlework, etc. If a merchant, contribute a dollar or two to help defray expenses.

The importance of such an exhibit cannot be overestimated. It will attract the attention of all visitors to our county. Among those visitors will be many people from other states who are searching for a location, and such an exhibit cannot fail to make a favorable impression upon them not only as to the character of our climate and soil, but to the enterprise of our people. Nor will the benefit be confined to the visitors who see it. They have friends, and to those friends will relate what they have seen, and thus will Sumer county's advantages be adverfised throughout all the country. The reward which will follow will be well worth the effort, so let us all go to work, and begin that work now, for only by taking it in time and working all together can we make it a full success.

stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange. Exchange.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The dealings in the stock exchange today were suddenly interrupted at noon by the death of Vice-President A. B. Hill, and the exchange was closed for the remainder of the day.

Trading during the session was moderately active, and under generally improved feeling was marked by firm tone. There was considerable feverishness apparent, however, and fluctuations were within comparatively narrow limits, except in few stocks. Conspicuous among these were Wheeling and Lake Eric, Reading and Pacific Mail. The opening was strong, with Jersey Central up one per cent, while the advances in remainder were within 3/2. The market soon quieted down, except for Wheeling and Reading. Further advances were made in first half hour, after which a partial reaction took place and the movement in prices became very small. A firm tone was resumed before the end of first hour and higher figures were recorded in most of the arm tone was resumed before the end of arist nour and higher figures were recorded in most of the list. Toward noon, however, more decided heaviness was developed and prices were generally brought below those of opening, the market at interruption of business being quiet but heavy. The total sales were 117,000 shares. Final figures are usually in favor of advances, although those of active stocks are for insignificant fractions only.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.
Special to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, July 15-With heavy sales and a con CHICAGO, July 15—With heavy sales and a continued disposition on the part of the local crowd to talk hot wheat market at the opening, was sick enough. August opened at ½c off at 71, and fell directly to 70% c, afterward recovering a fraction.

Corn was higher early, but not quite so bullish; August opened at 37% c and settled down around 37c. There was a fair sized crowd in short ribs and There was a fair sized crowd in short ribs and many of them were disposed to buy. To do this they worked the market off a fraction from 8.20, the opening point, and then took in ribs all the way up to 8.273 c. Up to 10.30 there were few changes in prices but the tone remained firm. There was a large trade in corn, especially during the first half hour of the session. Ribs eased back again to 8.225 c. wrile wheat remained at 70% c, the "hot wheat" string was pulled again with about the usual re-sults, no decided break in prices, but a nervous, un-settled, unsteady feeling pervading the minds of the speculative element, and probably having the ef-fect of checking purchases that would otherwise probably have been made. A great bulk of the trading, which was light at best, was between 703/4 and 71c. The close of the session was easy at 70½c for August. After the first hour corn settled down into sort of a rut and remained very steady at 25‰c. Trade, while active for the time, was wholly without significance.

Mr. Chappell said that he was not opposite to such action. It was generally known is the committee would meet, and the attentance was a fair average one. Very few vot for the bill. The friends of the bill were no fied that the bill would be called up. Possible there were some points the friends of the by wished to bring out, and as the policy of the committee was to give every one a hearing

Mr. Howell said that no one appr But there is no doubt that, a slight misunder standing prevailed about the meeting of the committee. Some thought there would be no meeting of the committee in consequence of the trip to Salt Springs, and he, the speaker, was one of that number. He thought that the representatives from Fulton county should be heard on the measure.

Mr. Weil said he was notified of the meeting of the committee, but did not go. He had no complaints to make against the chairman of the committee. The bill was of sufficient importance to be considered on its merits.

MR. ANNEIM OPPOSES THE BILL.

Mr. Arnhelm opposed the motion to recon mit. He proposed to call attention to whe the bill contained. The Marietta and Nort Georgia railroad was the foster-child of th charge.

A point of order was made that the merit of the bill could not be discussed.

Speaker Protem Clay called attention to rul that the whole question is opened, and the merits of the bill may be discussed.

The speaker pro tem ruled that the point was not well taken. "Does the gentleman from Dougherty op-pose the motion to recommit?" asked Mr Howell.

Howell.

"I shall leave it to the house to determine whether they will recommit such a bill," replied that gentleman. "The state road was built by the money of the people of Georgia. The Marietta and North. Georgia railroad was constructed largely by the money of the people of Georgia. It is owned by persons who came here to make money. It was built as a FEEDER TO THE STATE ROAD.

The use of 250 convicts for three years was given the road and the state loaned it $66,000. The time was extended for the completion of the road, and in the end the road gobbled up the $66,000. The cry that we must not stand in the way of improvement does not apply to in the way of improvement does not star in the way of improvement does not apply this case. There is no better road in the star than the Western and Atlantic. You recoiled the letter of "your Uncle Joe" speaking of the agnificent cars and engines on this road."

Mr. Watts asked, "Do they not propose the extension of the line to Knoxville, Tenn., and feeders that may extend to the State road?"

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Arnheim, "this little road built by the contribution of a bull calf and sheep may condemn the road bed of the State road itself. This road had its attorney before the committee, and they ave him a respectful hearing. His eloquence and persuasion fell upon the rock of a good judgment, of a majority of the committee. The bill would be snowed under, as it deserved to be."

MR. HOWELL REFLIES.

Mr. Howell REPLIES.

Mr. Howell did not understand the motives of those who would thus throttle the bill. Its friends merely asked that it be referred back to the committee to be discussed upon its merite. erits, so that they could report back intel gently.

"If the members of the committee vote, speak and act on this bill as they have on other bills," said Mr. Howell, "they cannot do else than report it favorably. It is proposed to extend the Marietta and North Georgia railroad to the Tennessee line and to the North Carolina line, and to Atlanta to meet new connections. Have we as representatives the right to place the state in a different plane from that of individuals? We have granted numerous charters for railroad right to place the state in a different plane from that of individuals? We have granted numerous charters for railroads running parallel with established lines. There is the Richmond and Danville railroad and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, competing lines to the State road. They have not injured the value of the state road."

Mr. Schofield (interrupting)—"Has not Governor Brown written a letter appealing for protection against the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad?"

"I do not know," replied Mr. Howell. "If these two lines had injured the state road, still I would vote for this bill."

Mr. Howell with great force draw a graphic these two lines had injured the state road, still I would vote for this bill."

Mr. Howell, with great force, drew a graphic picture of what had been accomplished in northeast Georgia' by the completion of the Riehmond and Danville railroad, showing its effect upon and benefit to the people of that section. Land had increased in value from 150 to 250 per cent since its completion. The mineral and agricultural resources of that section had been wonderfully developed.

"The Marietta and North Georgia railroad extends through

of the United States. It is rich in marble, in iron ore and gold. It is inhabited by a great and noble people. It is not a competing line with the State road, except from Marietta to Atlanta. Its friends will be willing to yield the State road the exclusive right to conduct all the local traffic between Marietta and Atlanta. The general assembly had given a charter to the Rome and Carrollton milroad, a competing line, and to the Atlanta and Hawkinsville railroad, a competing line of the Central railroad. We had as much right, and it was as much our duty, to protect the Central railroad, as we do that of our own proparty, the State road. We ask as a courtesy that the bill be recommitted."

Mr. Tate said that he saw-Mr. Weil and invited him to attend the session of the committee. He, Mr. Weil, replied that Mr. Hoke Smith would attend.

Mr. Weil said that Mr. Tate's statement was secrect.

Mr. Chappell said that he was not opposed to such action. It was generally known that the committee would meet, and the attendance was a fair average one. Very few voted for the bill. The friends of the bill were notified that the bill would be called up. Possibly there were some points the friends of the bill wished to bring out, and as the policy of the committee was to give every one a hearing. wished to bring out, and as the boncy of the committee was to give every one a hearing, he would favor the recommittal of the bill.

Mr. Howell said that no one appreciated the honesty and capability of the honored chairman of the railread committee more than he did. But there is no doubt that a slight misunderstanding prevailed about the meeting of the committee. Some thought there would be no meeting of the committee in consequence of meeting of the committee in consequence or the trip to Salt Springs, and he, the speaker, was one of that number. He thought that the representatives from Fulton county should be

Mr. Weil said he was notified of the meeting of the committee, but did not go. He had no complaints to make against the chairman of the committee. The bill was of sufficient importance to be considered on its merits.

Mr. Arnheim opposed the motion to recommit. He proposed to call attention to what the bill contained. The Marietta and North Georgia railroad was the foster-child of the state, built by the labor of 250 convicts, free of

Mr. Arnheim then called for the further seading of the bill, and at the close moved that the bill be re-committed with instructions to report on Monday by substitute or otherwise. The Marietta and North Georgia railroad was constructed largely by the money of the people of Georgia. It is owned by persons who came here to make money. It was built as a FEEDER TO THE STATE ROAD.

The use of 250 convicts for three years was given the road and the state loaned it $66,000. was extended for the completion of and in the end the road gobbled up 90. The cry that we must not stand in the way of improvement does not apply in this case. There is no better road in the state than the Western and Atlantic. You recollect the letter of "your Uncle Joe" speaking of the magnificent cars and engines on this road." Mr. Watts asked, "Do they not propose the extension of the line to Knoxville, Tenn., and feeders that may extend to the State road?" feeders that may extend to the State road?"
"Yes, sir," said Mr. Arnheim, "this little road built by the contribution of a bull calf and sheep may condemn the road bed of the State road itself. This road had its attorney before the committee, and they gave him a respectful hearing. His eloquence and persuasion fell upon the rock of a good judgment, of a majority of the committee. The bill would be snowed under, it deserved to be."

MR. HOWELL REPLIES.

Mr. Howell did not understand the motives of those who would thus throttle the bill. Its triends merely asked that it be referred back to the committee to be discussed upon its committee to be discussed upon its

"If the members of the committee vote, speak and act on this bill as they have on other bils," said Mr. Howell, "they cannot do else than report it favorably. It is proposed to extend the Marietta and North Georgia railextend the Marietta and North Georgia railroad to the Tennessee line and to the North Carolina line, and to Atlanta to meet new connections. Have we as representatives the right to place the state in a different plane from that of individuals? We have granted numerous charters for railroads running parallel with established lines. There is the Richmond and Danville railroad and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, competing lines to the State road. They have not injured the value of the state road."

motection against the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad?"

"I do not know." replied Mr. Howell. "If these two lines had injured the state road, still Iwould vote for this bill."

Mr. Howell, with great force, drew a graphic picture of what had been accomplished in northeast Georgia by the completion of the Riehmond and Danville railroad, showing its effect upon and benefit to the people of that section. Land had increased In value from 150 to 250 per cent since its completion. The mineral and agricultural resources of that section had been wonderfully developed.

"The Marietta and North Georgia railroad extends through

THE RICHEST MINERAL SECTION of the United States. It is rich in marble, in iten ore and gold. It is inhabited by a great and noble people. It is not a competing line with the State road, except from Marietta to Atlanta. Its friends will be willing to yield the State road the exclusive right to conduct all the local traffic between Marietta and Atlanta. The general assembly had given a charter to the Rome and Carrollton all the willing line, and to the Atlanta and Hawkinsville railroad, a competing line of the Central railroad. We had as much right, and it was as much our duty, to protect the Central railroad, as we do that of our own property, the State road. We ask as a courtesy that the bill be recommitted."

DR. FELTON'S STRONG OPPOSITION.

Dr. Felton, of Bartow, hoped the house woulp at once kill the bill. The committee had considered it and reported adverse upon it, now let the house confirm their action.

The speaker claimed that Geergia had done enough for the Marietta and North Georgia railroad, and much of what had been done was of doubtful constitutional propriety. Thousands of dollars had been given it in violation of the spirit, if not the letter, of the constitution. This bill was one more blow at the State road, and would rob the state, through the Western and Atlantic railroad. Individually, he would not charter any road to be juice the State road. That road was "the host valuable property the state ever will or can own," in the language of Hon. Joe Brown. The rental of this road goes to the education of the poor children of Georgia. It is the collateral on our bonds. If you depreciate the road you lessen confidence and depreciate our bonds. Our bonds would decline in Wall street twenty percent in twenty-four hours if you did so depreciate the road. "It must be remembered," he added, "that Governor Gordon will have to refund $2,000,000 of our state debt, and the W. and A. R. R. is our only collateral."

"How much did the chartering of the Augus-

"How much did the chartering of the Augusta and Chattanooga railroad depreciate our bonds?" asked Mr. Howell.

"Thank you! Thank you!" began the doctor. "Well, the charter was granted, and that is the last heard of that road. But this bill means business. Atlanta is not receiped in this means business. Atlanta is not moving in this matter. All the freight over the Marietta and North Georgia railroad for the Atlantic coast must come through Atlanta and leave a little of its drippings, of its debris, of its habiliments many the restreaming of the Atlantic Coast must come through Atlanta and leave a little of its drippings, of its debris, of its habiliments among her enterprising citizens. Pass this bill and the freight will go via Austell."

"The gentlemen advocating the bill are FURE, HONEST AND INCORRUPTIBLE, but it looks like that beneath the surface some job for the honest of some individual procket.

job for the benefit of some individual pocket was hid. Develop north Georgia! If the State road has not developed north Georgia how will you develop it by a line from Marietta to Atlanta?"

Mr. Felton then moved to lay all the motions on the table. The speaker protem. decided that this could not be done.

Mr. Wheeler called the previous question, which call was sustained. The motion to recommit was declared lost.

Mr. Weil asked leave to withdraw the bill.

Mr. Harrison, of Quitman, objected and the house refused to allow it to be withdrawn. Mr. Howell called for the yeas and nays on the motion to recommit. The call was sus-tained and the motion was lost by a vote of yeas 32, navs 100.

It is stated upon good authority that the section of Mr, Weil's bill, relating to the branches to Atlanta and to Austell, will be withdrawn, and the house will be asked to make the other changes in the charter as set forth in the other sections of the bill, The company will also ask permission to build certain switches and branch lines along the present line of road.

IT FEELS LIKE SUMMER.

How Atlanta Compares in Point of Heat with Other Southern Cities. There is a very commendable spirit among the people of Atlanta to be among the first in everything. This desire caused the good name and character of the city to suffer unitarity. Througher left.

As all remember, the day was exceedingly warm, and when the reports of the intense heat from other cities began to come in, and a small town in Dakota was said to be enjoying small town in Dakota was said to be enjoying the unusual temperature of 108 degrees, that commendable spirit, above referred to, prompted some patriotic citizen to start the report that the thermometer registered 102 degrees here at 3 o'clock, making Atlanta a good second in the list of hot cities.

This report went out to the world, and the newspapers of the north and west called the attention of their readers next day to the fact that the boasted summer climate of Atlanta was a myth and not a reality.

[If was hot in Atlanta Thursday, and no one doubted it, but every city in Georgia where there is a weather station was hotter. With the exception of two places, every city in the south showed a higher temperature on that south showed a higher temperature on that day. These exceptions, strange to say, were New Orleans and Vicksburg, the mercury standing 90 at the one and 91 at the other. Thursday at 3 o'clock p. m., the mercury reached the highest point in Atlanta, and that point was not 102, but exactly 10 degrees less—92. The most accurate instruments in the city, those at the capitol and the signal service observatory in the customburse marked this those at the capitol and the signal service observatory in the customhouse, marked this point, and numerous gentlemen have declared that in different parts of the city the mercury at that time was not as high as 92. Now what was the highest point reached in other cities? Augusta was parboiling at 98. The people of Charleston, Savannah, and Wilmington were mopping their foreheads in unison with the same degree of grief. Montgomery showed 95, Galveston 96, Memphis 93.

Visitors at Athens declared that the heat in that city was almost unendurable, but Athens was wresting with a university commencement and an immense amount of oratory, and was naturally warmer than usual.

Atlanta, on her solid escarpment with the breezes from Kennesaw and Stone mountains fanning her cheeks, was as comfortable and as pleasant a place as one could reasonably expect, where streets are solid blocks of granite and where houses towered towards the sky.

While Thursday was a warm day no casualities were reported. Thursday night was one of the closest and most oppressive nights the city has had for many years. The mercury indicated no great heat, but there was something in the atmosphere that caused persons to toss with restfulness, and to make children cry out with irritation. The night watchmen declared that the night was the sultriest they have yet encountered, and no relief came until an hour or so before dawn, when a cool breeze sprang up.

That goel breeze lasted more or less all day.

have yet encountered, and no relief came until an hour or so before dawn, when a cool breeze sprang up.

That cool breeze lasted more or less all day yesterday. The maximum temperature indicated by the mercury was 89, three degrees lower than that of yesterday. There was not as much complaint of the heat as was heard the day before, though there was more actual suffering. The only important case recorded was that of seven men who were working for Mr. O. F. Owen and Colonel I. P. Thomas, grading lots on Whitehall street. There were fourteen laborers engaged in the work, which was very heavy and fully exposed to the rays of the sun. Shortly before noon seven of the men were so overcome by the heat that they were forced to stop work. They did not succumb, but doubtless would have done so had they continued at the work.

The hall of the house of representatives has a kind of state reputation for warmth. Yesterday the floor and galleries were crowded, and yet there was not much complaint. Perhaps the interest in the proceedings made spectators and members overlook their personal condition.

Last night, for several hours, the mercury

Last night, for several hours, the mercury displayed a provoking tendency to keep still. From six o'clock until half-past ten, it was as from six o'clock until half-past ten, it was as quiet as a church mouse, giving no sign of life in its sluggish depths. Shortly before eleven it slowly began to fall, much to the joy of those who were watching it, and by one o'clock the night was as good a night for sleeping purposes as one would care to have.

The hot weather is undoubtedly upon us, and it should be warmly welcomed. If parties sweltering with heat could only be induced to reflect that every such day as yesterday is worth a thousand bales of cotton to the day is worth a thousand bales of cotton to the land, it would seem that there would be less complaint and a modicum of congratulation. IN A CRITICAL CONDITION.

"Doctor" Koch, the Kimball House Barber, Still Unconscious, There is not much change in the condition of "Doctor" Koch, the Kimball house head barber, who was strack by the negro boy Bob Jackson.

The "doctor" was out of his head all day yesterday, and his condition was such as to re-quire constant attention. Toward evening he grew somewhat better, and the attending physician says he is out of danger.

Nothing has as yet been seen of the negro who made the assault, and the probabilities are that he has made his escape from the city.

The Governor and His Cabinet.

Yesterday morning Governor Gordon received a large delegation of gentlemen, citizens from Polk and Bibb counties, who were before the executive in the interests of a convict named O'Brannen, sent to the penitentiary for ten years from Bibb county, for selling a stolen ring. The ring was not very valuable, and the friends of the convict regard the sentence as excessive. O'Brannen has served two years of his sentence, and by his examplary conduct has made many friends. He is said to be a young man of good education and fair intelligence, and there is a numerously signed petition on file in ithe executive office, to which are the names of the clerk of the court, the ordinary, six of the jurors, the lawyers and many influential citizens. Judge Simmons, who presided at the trial of the case, was in consultation with the governor day before yesterday, presumably about the matter. The governor gave a patient hearing to the delegation, but did not intimate what action would be taken.

Governor Gordon received from Mr. George W. Searle, 47 Court street, Boston, a letter in which he was requested to instruct his secretary to forward to Mr. Searle's address his recent messages to the general assembly. The writer stated in the letter that he took

DURING THE GOVERNOR'S absence at the university commencement, a large number of letters accumulated on his desk, and for the last two days he has been busy endeavoring to clear away the mass of correspondence. A rapid worker, the governor makes great progress, and before he returned to the mansion last night had almost succeeded in getting up with the business in arrear. He has issued no official order lettly beyond some proposition, and has business in arrear. He has issued no official orders lately beyond some requisitions, and has not yet made public any nominations to various offices waiting to be filled. It is more than probable that before many days he will send to the senate for confirmation the names of all appointees made during the legislative recess, together with such new nominations as will be necessary to fill vacant offices.

Comptroller General Wright on yester day received the application of the Insurance company of Virginia for permission to do business in Georgia. This is the second application the company has made, the first being

The law requires foreign companies to have on deposit with the proper officers in their state $100,000 in paid up capital, invested in stocks and bonds esti-mated at their market value at time the stateup capital, invested in stocks and bonds estimated at their market value at time the statement is made, or have assets to that amount. The life insurance company of Virginia, in its application, made the statement that it had $19,000 paid up capital, the $81,000 remaining being invested in notes given by the stock-holders of the company. Major Pegram, of Richmond, was with the comptroller yesterday, and the matter was argued by them. The company's agent explained that the reason why it had not more paid up capital was because it had never found the need of it. That these personal notes were secured by mortgages on real estate in sums double the amounts, that the company had been in operation for eighteen years, and during that time had never been in litigation and had never compromised a loss. The comptroller general disclaimed any intentiou of reflecting upon the solvency of the company, but declared that in-asmuch as the statement did not come up to the requirements of the law, he would have

THE TAX RECEIVERS of the various counties The tax receivers of the various counties have been slowly forwarding their annual digests for the year 1887. Yesterday one was received from Oglethorpe county, which makes seven up to date. All the digests received previous to yesterday showed a commendable increase in the amount of property returned, only one falling behind. But the returns from Oglethorpe county, as sent in yesterday, were simply appalling to the officers. The county is one of the oldest, most populous, and best in the state, and yet there is a falling off in the value of property since the digest of 1886 the value of property since the digest of 1886 of $129,886.00. This enormous decrease is simply unaccountable in the opinion of the officials in the dapartment. It does not seem possible that such a depreciation of values could occur in one county, when all around it, the other counties are increasing in wealth. the other counties are increasing in wealth. The only plausible explanation of the matter seems to be that the officer in making up his returns, overlooked some district.

A Party of Honduras Gentlemen Spend the Day in Atlanta.

Yesterday the following persons arrived in the city by the Atlanta and West Point railroad from New Orleans: "H. A. Spears, Abelard Zelaya, Benjamin Zelaya, Maceos and B. Angel Liva, Honduras."

Mr. Spears is a New York civil and mining engineer, who has been residing in Honduras for some months. Mr. Spears is accompanying Senor Zelaya and party to New York, acting as interpreter the way. Senor Zelaya is acting minister of finance for Honduras, and his mission in this country is to try and induce some of the foreign immigration to turn in the direction of Honduras. Imbued with liberal ideas, Senor Zelaya believes in stirring the rather sluggish blood of his countrymen by bringing them into contact with live and progressive men, bent upon winning their way in the world.

What the Fines for the Week Are-A Negro Goes to the Rock Pile-A Midnight Burglary-Other Crimes.

THE LAW BREAKING SIDE OF LIFE.

'This week will pan out well so far as police court receipts are concerned," remarked Stationhouse Keeper Jim Wright, as he footed up his books about 12 o'clock last night. Why so?" asked a Constitution repor-

"Why so?" asked a Constitution reporter.

"Oh, 'cause. See, so far this week nearly $600 in fines have been paid in. Besides that a third as much more is being worked out on the streets. If Saturday holds out well the week will be a fine one, I promise you."

"What was the biggest fine paid this week?"

"Two hundred dollars. It was paid by Daus. It was an old fine, but then it just came in. Then Kennebrew paid in another hundred. So you see these two men represent half the money so far."

"What was the smallest fine?"

"Seventy-five cents—just the cost in the case. It was paid by Judge Anderson's boot black. You remember the boy who blacked his shoes Monday and got off with the cost? Well, that was the boy. The balance is made up of one, two, three, five, ten, twenty and forty dollar fines. Did you never notice that there is no such thing as a four dollar fine?"

"No. Why is it?"

"I don't know, but the boys all say that Judge Anderson has a superstitious horror of four. He was born I believe on the fourth hour of the fourth day of the fourth week of the fourth month of the year, and is afraid of four. He has been known to whack 'em for one, two, three, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, etc., but never a four. Why, man, when that four. Funny, ain't it?"

"Well, yes, I guess so."

"Speaking of Judge Anderson, did you ever know that he never took a chew of tobacco, smoked a cigar, cigarette, or pipe, took a drink of liquor or swore an oath in his life?"

"Is that so?"

"Oh, yes, and he never had a toothache or a corn. Great man that Jim is. Talk about hearts! Why, he's got one bigger than a Georgia watermelon, and I almost believe its better. He ain't much for looks, I must say, but when it comes to killing wild cats, breaking up whisky selling or setting up with a wife whipper, he getsthere, Eli."

Thirty. Days With a Sledgehammer.

Thirty Days With a Sledgehammer.

Ben Pascal, a jet-black negro, who stands nearly six feet in his stocking feet, is slinging a sixteen-pound sledgehammer hard against the stone quarry at the city stockade, and the slinging will be kept up thirty days. Pascal was called out of the prisoner's room yesterday morning to answer the charge of disorderly conduct. As he stepped in front of Judge Anderson he entered a plea of not guilty to the charge. The evidence showed that Pascal has cursed some ladies whom he met on the street. His language was extremely offensive and his conduct as bad. Judge Anderson heard the testimony and turning to the negro asked:

"How old are you?"

"Just twenty."

"Pretty strong, are you?"

"Pretty strong, are you?"
"Guess I is, judge. In fact, I think I is almost strong enough to lift you off that bench, if I wasn't afraid."
"Well, I am glad you are afraid. However, as I was going to remark a moment ago, I shall go down stairs directly and telephone out to Mr. Hastings at the stockade to have a long handle put in a heavy twelve-pound hamme Sixteen pounds are the heaviest out there, judge," suggested Clerk Carlyle.

"Sixteen, eh?! Well, I wish it was sixty, but as I was going on to say a minute ago, I shall telephone out to have one equipped for you, and see that you get a chance to use it for the next thirty days, and may the days be long and hot."

There Were Five in the Gang.

Judge Anderson will act as referee in a little chuck-a-luck game this morning during the session of police court. For some time past persession of police court. For some time past persons walking and riding out Hunter street have been annoyed by a gang of small negroes who loaf and linger about the corner. The matter has been reported to police headquarters, and several attempts have been made to catch them. Yesterday, Captain Crim and Patrolmen Nolan and Abbott made a sudden raid upon the corner and captured five of the gang. They were Will Keed, Will Connally, Eugene Perkins, Henry Williams and Mose Neal. When the officers reached the gang they were throwing dice, and this morning they were throwing dice, and this morning they will be made repeat the work in police court, so that Judge Anderson may decide whether or not they were gaming.

The Negro Loved Watermelons. For some time past cars loaded with water-melons have been broken open in the East Tennessee railroad yard and melons stolen. The matter was reported at police headquarters and yesterday Call Officer Thompson went out in time to catch Henry Lewis with a big melon. Lewis was booked for larceny and locked up at police headquarters. From his cell he saw the officer eat the melon.

King of the Netherlands.

John Northern came from Cobb county yesterday in custody of an officer, who is carrying him to the insane asylum at Milledgeville. For a few hours the lunatic was confined in the city prison. Northern's insanity is due to religion, and he imagines himself the king of the Netherlands and the greatest swimmer who ever plunged into water.

Darkness Caused His Arrest.

About midnight last night Patrolmen Abbott and Ivy were near the corner of Williams and Bartow street. A negro with a coat hanging on his arm was trying to hide in the corner. He was pulled out and his shoes were found untied. The officers thought the circumstances suspicious and conducted the darky to police headquarters, where he was locked up. He gave his name as Brooks.

He Will Stand up Again.
Only a few days ago Sheek & Co., the hide men who are in business on Forsyth street, were up in police court charge with violating the section of the city code governing the handling of hides. A fine was imposed, and yesterday another case was made for the same offense.

Burglars broke into Jenkins's shoeshop, 88 Forsyth street, and stole a pair of shoes.

Colonel Nelson Tift, of Albany, who was in the city a few days ago, has on his place, near Al-bany, an artesian well that flows 110 gallons to the minute, sending the water up 30 feet in the air. The stream runs a small saw for wood purposes, and other light machinery, the waste water supplying a fishpond. The water from the pond flows into a natural lime sink and is seem no more.

TOO OFTEN THE CASE. How Twenty Years Have Been Consumed in

Winding Up an Estate.

For several days Hon. T. W. Latham, of Douglas county, has been sitting as master or chancellor in an equity case. The sessions of the court have been held at the state capitol and the unusual proceedings have attracted considerable attention, holding the interest of those who have heard the discussions from beginning to end ginning to end.

Twenty-four years ago, Joseph Summerlin, a well-to-do planter of Douglas county, died. The testator left a property supposed to be valued at about $75,000. His legatees were his wife and her two children, the widow being his second wife and the children the issue of that marriage. By a former marriage there were a son and daughter, who were not mentioned in the will of the testator. It was said that he had given to each of the children by the first marriage that portion of the estate during his life which would equal their inheritance after his death.

The will was contested in the courts, and was allowed to be probated, but on a second trial was set aside. The case was taken to the supreme court, and while pending there, a settlement was effected, by which the two children of the first marriage received two-thirds of the estate, leaving the remaining one-third of the estate to the widow and her two-children. When the two younger-children—those by the second wife—grew to be older. third of the estate to the wroow and ner two for the Militia Next Month.

THE SOLDIER'S TENTS.

The State Will Receive Fifteen Wall Tent for the Militia Next Month.

Some time ago Captain John Milledge, of the Governor's Horse Guard, suggested to Governor Gordon that in making requisition on the war department for the state's quota of the $400,000 000 appropriated under the general act, that he include a certain number of tents, for the benefit of the militia in their annual encampments. It was Captain Milledge's hope that these tents would arrive in time for the encampment at Salt Springs. They did not, however, and he succeeded in obtaining tents elsewhere.

AN FITERPRISING FIRM.

A Few Words Regarding an Atlanta Clothing House. Probably no firm in the state is better known or liked than Messrs. Eiseman Bros., the leading clothiers, whose large and beautiful store, 17 and 19 Whitehall street, is the admiration of all who see it. Messrs. Eiseman Bros. are one of the oldest firms in the state, having been established here for nearly twenty years. The Atlanta house is one of their three large stores, the other two being in Baltimore and Washington. Being manufactures these gentlemen can well afford to offer low prices, as they save the middleman's profit. In making suits to order they also have great advantage, being able to offer inducements in the way of samples, and in price. Their store is now packed with goods which they will sell at a large discount, wishing to close out their summer stock before the fall trade begins.

Their line of gents' furnishing goods is very fine, not being surpassed in quantity or quality by any stock, either in the city or in the south. They handle the latest styles of hats, being general agents for one of the leading hatters in the union.

This is an excellent, yet a true showing.

Anyone contemplating purchasing anything is their line of general agents for the second of the leading in their line of general agents for one of the leading hatters in the union. been established here for nearly twenty years.

This is an excellent, yet a true shewing.

Anyone contemplating purchasing anything in their line should give them a call before so doing. They can and will save money to the purchaser. Nothing but a good quality of goods is handled, and everything is guaranteed to be as represented. Persons residing out of the city should be certain to call on Messrs. Eiseman Bros. when here to purchase clothing of any kind. These are enterprising and worthy gentlemen, and The Constitution takes pleasure in bringing them prominently before its many readers.

THE REUNION ON THE 22D.

The Survivors of the 42d Georgia Regiment to Meet at Grant Park.

Elaborate preparations are making for the reunion of the Forty-second Georgia regiment at Grant park on the 22d. This picnic will be one of the best ever given in this county. It is expected that Governor Gordon and

It is expected that Governor Gordon and several other effective speakers will make addresses. Colonel Thomas, who has the arrangements in charge, said that the reunion will be the best attended and most successful of any yet held by the survivors of the Forty-second regiment.

The reunion of the survivors of the Thirtieth Georgia regiment at Salt Springs yesterday was a very pleasant event. The attendance was not so large as had been expected, very few persons from Atlanta being present. The barbecue was all that could be desired. The day was pleasantly spent by all. The reunion next year will probably occur at the same place.

TWO ACCIDENTS.

A Young Negro Thrown From a Wagon-A Baby Falis Nine Feet. Bob Lester, a ten-year-old negro boy whose home is on Decatur street, was quite seriously injured yesterday by being thrown from a

The boy was working for Phelan's dairy and was with a wagon delivering milk on Jones-street. While the driver was in the house tie two mules drawing the wagon started to run. The boy was thrown out and falling upon his head was seriously hurt. He was carried to his home and a physician sent for. Late last night he was resting easy.

A child nine months old, daughter of Mr. J. H. Duffy, 134 Frazier street, fell aime feet from a window, but was not seriously burt.

PETER LYNCH FINED

One Hundred Dollars by Judge Anderson in Police Court

FOR VIOLATING THE PROHIBITION LAW

The Evidence Shows that Strong Drinks Were Sold Under a New Name The Attorneys Talk.

Peter Lynch, the merchant who handles anything from a paper of tacks to a steam en-gine or from a modern shoe peg to a house, at 95 Whitehall street, was arraigned in police court yesterday morning charged with violating the prohibition law, and was found guilty

A fine of $100 was imposed.

The courtroom was crowded when the case was called. Mr. Lynch was present and occuwas cared. Br. Lynch was present and occu-pled a chair to the left of Judge Anderson's stand. His attorney, Colonel Hammond, sat beside him, while Judge Pendleton, repre-renting the city, made himself comfortable upon a hard wooden bench—sandwiched be-tween two policemen. The witnesses, of whom there were a great many, were called forward in a body and sworn.

Knox Thrower, once a member of the general council and later a member of the board of police commissioners, was placed upon the stand and said that he had procured drinks at Mr. Lynch's.

"What kind of drinks?" asked Judge Anderson.

"Well it was called 'walk-around,' 'standaround,' 'peachade,' or something of that "Would it intoxicatec"

"Enough of it might, but from my experi-ence with it, a considerable quantity would be

"Enough of it might, but from my experience with it, a considerable quantity would be required."

Several other witnesses testified to the same as Mr. Thrower, and then Josh Callaway, through whom the case was made, was placed upon the stand. On the night of the second of the present month Callaway was arrested at his home, because, in a drukken fit, he was making the place disagreeable for his family and the neighbors. On the twelfth of the month, when the case was called in police court, Callaway stated that he purchased "his drink" at Peter Lynch's, 95 Whitehall street. He was found guilty and a fine of three dollars and cost was imposed. As the judge rendered his decision, Callaway remarked:

"Is that all? Well, I can pay that?"

"Then I'll find you five dollars for contempt," added Judge Anderson.

The two fines were enough for Calloway, and he quieted down. Later during the session of the court Judge Anderson remitted the five dollar fine. His statement, however, put Detectives Buchanan and Aldridge to work, and on the 13th they made the case against Mr. Lynch, having secured other evidence than Callaway's. When Callaway took the stand he stated that on Saturday afternoon he entered Nolan's shoe store to purchase a pair of shoes, and from there went to Mr. Lynch's, where he bought "peachade." William Callaway, his son, was with him, and knew that he had bought nothing at any other place. He had taken several drinks

"What kind of a drink do you take, Mr. Callaway?" asked the defendant's attorney.

"A gentleman's drink," answered the witness.

"You ought to know what a gentleman's ness.

"You ought to know what a gentleman's drink is, I guess you have taken enough of drink is, I guess you have taken enough of them."

Will Callaway, when introduced, asserted that he was with his father on the evening of the second, and that he purchased all he drank at Mr. Lynch's, and that it made him drunk. Patrolman Noland, who arrested Callaway that night, stated that Callaway was drunk. Colonel Hammond made a brief argument for his client, asserting that he had not violated the law and had sold nothing but temperance drinks.

Judge Anderson gave the argument a pa Judge Anderson gave the argument a patient hearing and then said:

"I think the evidence shows conclusively that the law has been violated. There is now in the court room a man who has just quit the winercom business and he has told me that the law has been violated every day in his place. In fact, he says that the business cannot be conducted without breaking the law. The courts are obliged to believe the sworn testimony presented. Calloway and his son both swear that the former was made drunk by liquor bought at Lynch's store, and that testimony stands uncontradicted. As to the evidence for the defense that merely shows that Mr. Lynch kept a bevage for sale which was not intoxicating, but it dosn't show that he did not keep other liquor age for sale which was not intoxicating, but it dosn't show that he did not keep other liquor which was intoxicating. It may be possible that Callaway got something to drink elsewhere, but there is no evidence to that effect. I believe Mr. Lynch to be guilty and enter a fine of $100 and costs. I would make it heaveir but for the fact that it is the first time the defendant has been arrested on this charge. I will give Mr. Lynch the same advice I have given other wine dealers, and that is to quit retailing altogether and stick to the is to quit retailing altogether and stick to the quart business, for if he comes before me again and is convicted, I will sentence him to work

After the fine had been imposed, Mr. Lynch gave a certified check for the amount with the cost and will appeal the case.
